Teachers may provide at least one synchronous lesson a week during the time frames that correspond to the period on the schedule. Students may get help during the period time frames listed as well. Students who aren't able to take part in the synchronous opportunities may view a recording of the synchronous lesson and complete the assignment on their own. ## Common Language/Definitions

Asynchronous Learning: Asynchronous learning happens on the student's schedule. While the instructor will provide materials for reading, lectures for viewing, assignments for completing, and exams for evaluation, the student has the ability to access and satisfy these requirements within a flexible time frame. Methods of asynchronous online learning include self-guided lesson modules, streaming video content, virtual libraries, posted lecture notes, and exchanges across discussion boards or social media platforms.

Synchronous Learning: Synchronous learning is the kind of learning that happens in real time. This means that the student, classmates, and instructor interact in a specific virtual place, through a specific online medium, at a specific time. In other words, it's not exactly anywhere, anyhow, anytime. Methods of synchronous online learning include video conferencing, teleconferencing, live chatting, and live-streaming lectures.

Office Hours: time when a student or small group of students can drop in and get help from a teacher on any recent subject matter, to include tutoring and/or answering clarifying questions for students.
